Brake Discs

Within the March 2010 New Number Announcement were listings for some brake discs. Some of these brake discs are specific to certain vehicles where the left brake disc is different from the right. This is correct for these applications and not a typo. Today there are a number of vehicles on the road that require four different brake discs.

To further clarify these applications and avoid possible confusion we are publishing this bulletin with the chart below detailing the part numbers involved.
